* Ten months.

The Association closes the first decade of its existence under favorable conditions. The fact that only one of the inmates has died, and that $43.10 covers the cost of medicines and medical attendance, speaks well for the health of the Institution. The average weekly number has been materially less than at any time since the second year, when the Association contained only the four original towns. This deficiency has been partly made up by the taking of boarders, from whom nearly $200 has been received. A hotel size Magee range has been purchased, and fills a long-felt need. By vote of the Board of Management taken May 2, the Town of Royalston was admitted to the Association, and it might be well to consider further additions. The crops have been exceptionally good, the income exceeding by a few dollars that of any previous year. The herd of cows, sixteen in number, is such as any owner would be proud of; it has been increased from eight which were kept ten years ago, and now fills the barn to its utmost capacity. As there was sufficient hay and forage harvested to have wintered a number more, the question is brought to our attention of whether Holden will build on an addition to the barn, or whether the Association will sell hay?

The present efficient warden and matron have been engaged for another year.
